Wade Nomura travelled to Denver to train incoming Rotary governors and staff at the Rotary Big West Institute. Attendees of the week-long training session included governors and staff from California, Arizona, Nevada, Oregon, Washington, Hawaii, New Mexico, Texas, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado and throughout the south-western region of Canada.

Nomura presented on Rotary International's humanitarian projects, and the process of implementing. Nomura is a leading authority on humanitarian projects and is incoming chair of the Rotary Foundation's Water, Sanitation and Hygiene Project Evaluations and Implementations. Nomura is also the grants chair for HANWASH, which is an organization in Haiti that works to bring safe drinking water to Haiti at an estimated cost of $1.2 billion.
